Hi! I'm Parker. You can ask me about Australia's mandatory data breach notification scheme. For example, you can ask me: "Do I need to notify a data breach?"

What is a data breach?

A data breach occurs when there has been unauthorised access to or disclosure of personal information, or where personal information has been lost. It is worth noting that not all data breaches are caused by an IT incident. Data breaches can also occur when physical documents are left in a public area, not properly disposed of or when physical documents are lost.

I think a data breach has occurred. Do I need to notify?

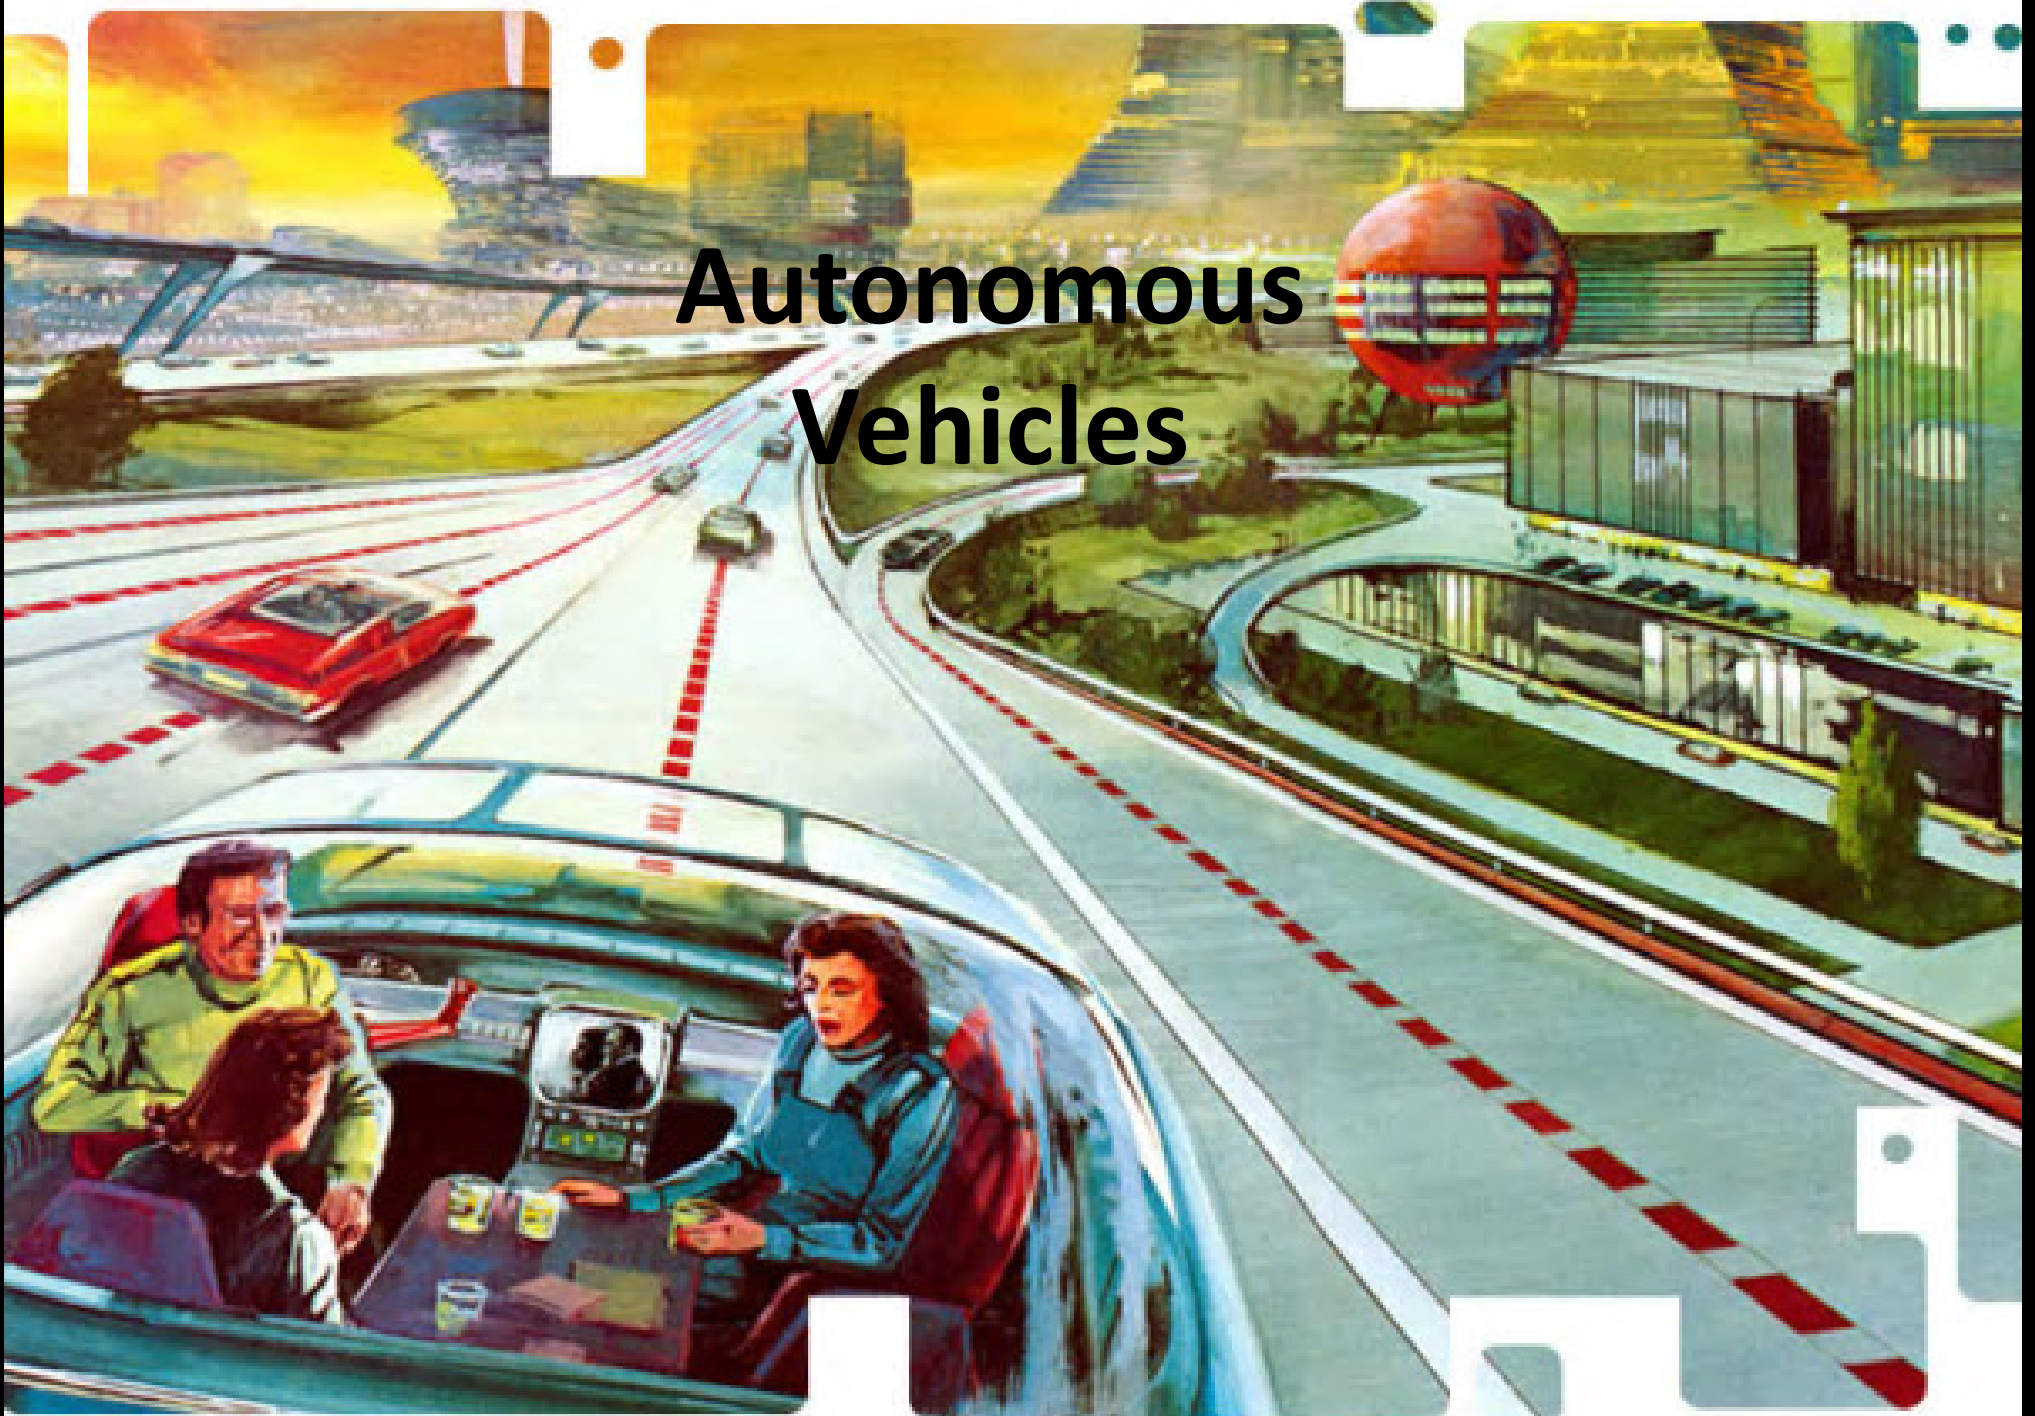

Some data breaches are notifiable under the mandatory data breach notification scheme, while others are not. Notification is required when an "eligible" data breach occurs. Would you like some information on whether a particular breach may be notifiable?

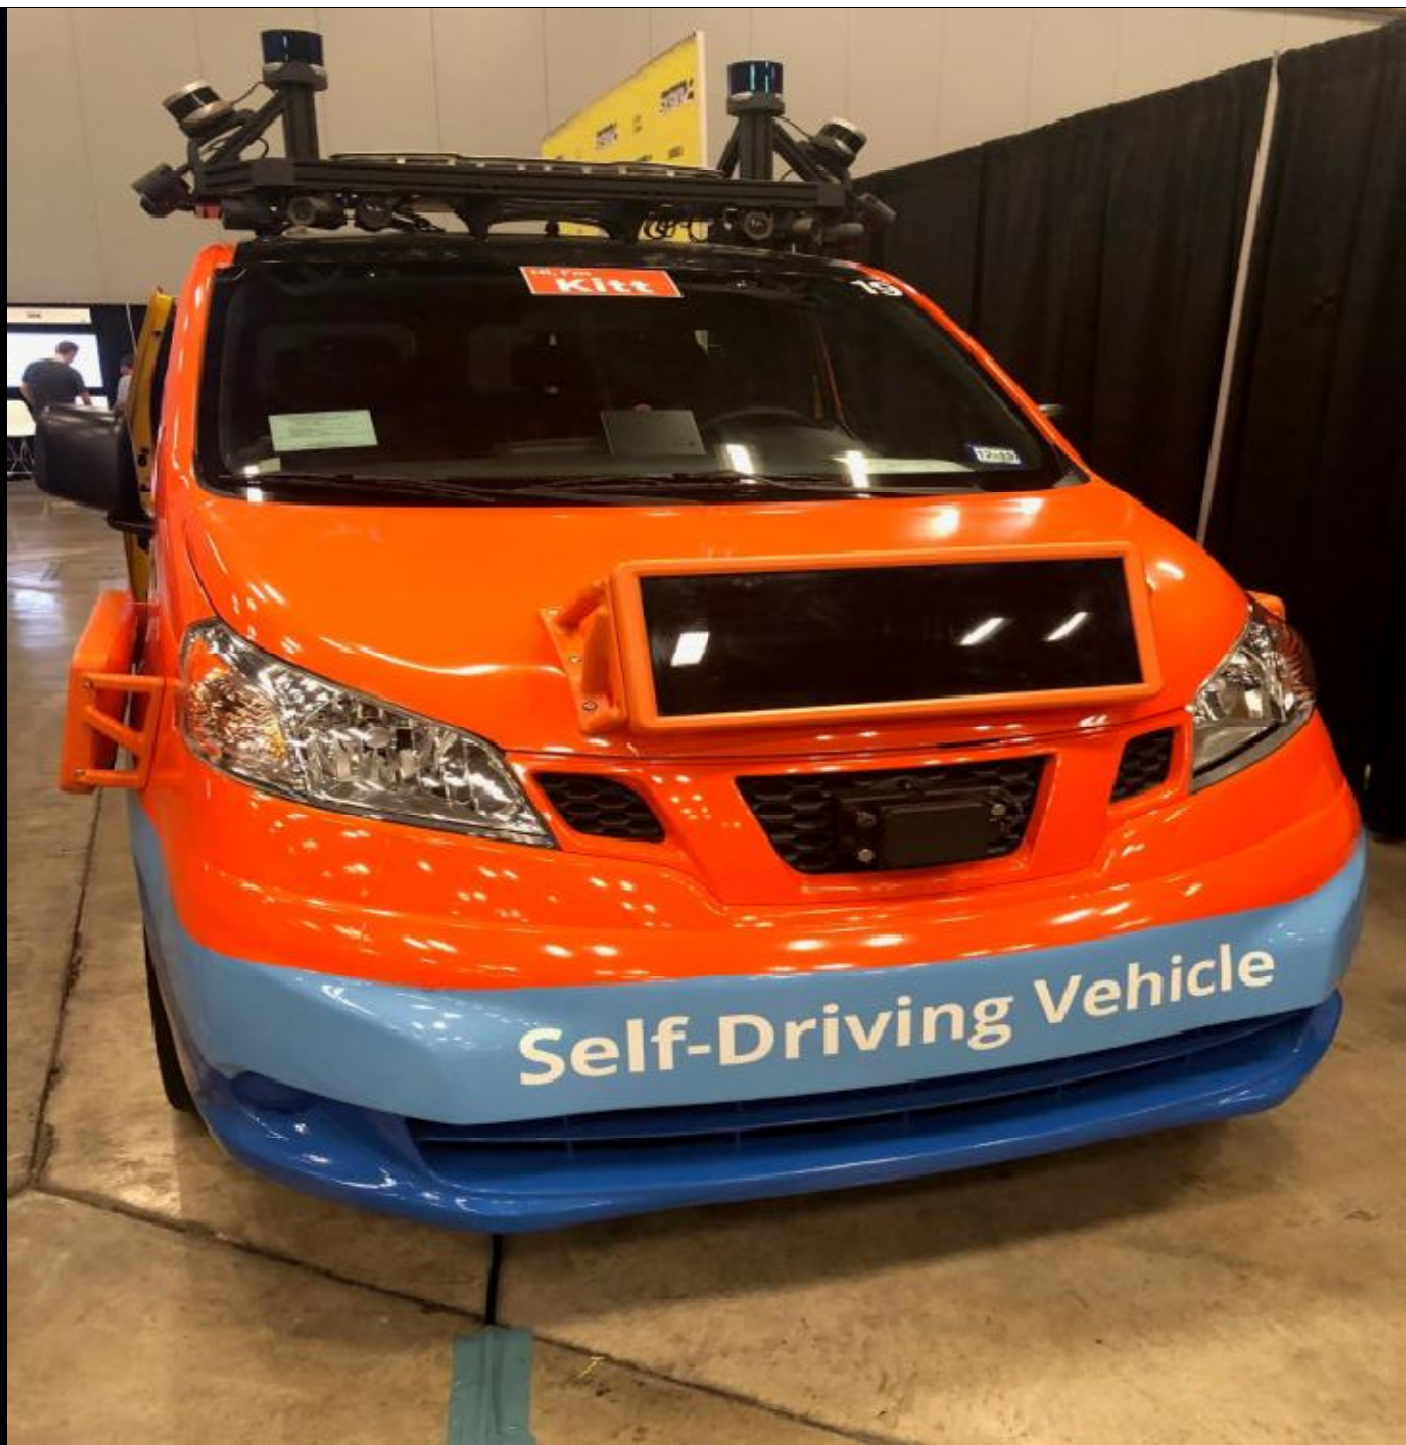

Yes, please.

Alright, I'll need to ask you a few questions to determine whether a particular breach is notifiable.

An illustration of an iceberg floating in a blue sea under a blue sky. The iceberg is divided by a horizontal line representing the water surface. The smaller, jagged tip of the iceberg is above the water, while the much larger, more complex base is submerged. A yellow sun is partially visible behind the peaks of the iceberg. To the left of the iceberg, there are two rectangular boxes: a white one above a black one. The white box contains the text 'IQ' and the black box contains the text 'EQ'.
